Local Green Business Spotlight: Woodmaster

WoodMaster is a locally owned and run custom cabinet shop taking the process green. They forayed into green about three years ago, working with Lydia Corser (Principal of Eco Interiors and greenspace owner). Since then, they have built many green kitchens and other cabinet projects. Green features include using FSC (Forest Stewardship Council) certified sustainably harvested woods for doors and solid pieces. They also use no-added formaldehyde glues when needed, as well as low- or no-VOC finishes routinely. For the cabinet boxes, WoodMaster uses only PureBond, an FSC plywood with a eco-friendly finish and no added formaldehyde adhesives.

Natural Bamboo Cabinetry by Woodmaster

WoodMaster has built many projects with bamboo plywood, which comes in two colors and several types of grain. The doors have a gorgeous natural edge-banding, eliminating the use of glued-on tapes. Stop in to see the vanities they've created from bamboo and dura-palm wood (from retired coconut trees) here at the shop. They also built our cash-wrap, which features the dura-palm and Kirei, an agricultural waste product from sorghum (used to make molasses) stalks. In the office, recycling is in place, and the shop puts out scraps of both leftover plywood and solid woods (when they are not re-usable for projects) for others to take. They have an efficient program in place! We routinely recommend their business to our clients and customers for their cabinetry needs. The staff and owner, Jonathan Leys, are very knowledgeable and willing to go as green as you are.
